Dismisses Assault Case In Frederick

Magistrate Wilbur E. Sheffield, Frederick, dismissed charges of assault and battery lodged against Donald W. Miller, of Gettysburg, after hearing the testimony Friday night. He said reasonable doubt existed in his mind as to the guilt of the defendant.

Miller, working in the Frederick area, is currently under a six month suspended sentence from an assault and battery conviction last month.

He was charged with an assault on Lena Lake Gerber, of Frederick, at a diner early Thursday.

Mrs. Gerber and Mrs. Doris Wetzel testified against Miller. Barbara Rinker, Anna Mae Kidd and "Dolly" Horton, called by defense counsel, said Miller did not slap the Gerber woman but grabbed her hair in trying to separate her and Miss Rinker.

Forsythe was driving west when, he told police, he apparently fell asleep. The car struck a concrete culvert on the south side of the road and both of the occupants were thrown against the windshield of the car. Forsythe suffered a fractured jaw. Both were removed to the Warner Hospital. Cassatt was either thrown from or crawled from

Develop Vaccine That Shows Promise Against All Polios

Copyright, Baltimore Evening Sun
BALTIMORE (AP)—Working with little children, a Johns Hopkins scientist has developed and tested a vaccine which gives promise of being effective against all three types of polio.

"I am satisfied that it is possible to produce a satisfactory level of polio antibodies in human beings," Dr. Howard A. Howe, adjunct professor of epidemiology at Hopkins, said today.

Antibodies are specific agents which can be developed in the blood to produce immunity against a disease.

Using a vaccine made of killed polio virus, Dr. Howe found that it made children develop antibodies against the virus. He presented his findings today at the annual meet-

"Mr. Lincoln Comes To Gettysburg"

"President Lincoln" arrived Saturday afternoon, was greeted by notables and townspeople at the Carlisle St. station, and walked to the Wills House on the "Diamond," where he is a guest overnight (1863) of David Wills. Here he (Ray Middleton) is shown riding in the procession to the National Cemetery to take part in the dedication program and to give his Gettysburg Address.

Heavy Visitation Here On Sunday

The National Park Service's estimate of the number of persons who toured the battlefield Saturday and Sunday was placed today at 6,164.

This figure represented guided tours, and did not take into account the thousands who were here Saturday for the Lincoln pageant, hundreds of others who came here Sunday to tour the field.

Traffic Sunday was the heaviest in many weekends, according to police officials. At one time, from 3:45 to 7:15 p.m. Sunday evening, cars were almost bumper-to-bumper on Buford Ave.

Jnn Riddle, superintendent of the National Cemetery, estimated 2,412 visitors in private cars before the cemetery gates were closed and later they were reopened Saturday, and 104 more persons in three buses. On Sunday there were 3,164 in private cars and 484 in 11 buses.

Firemen Called Out Twice This Morning

Borough firemen were called to two truck fire alarms this morning—with the one call proving a false alarm.

The first call came at 7:10 o'clock when the brakes of a tractor trailer driven by John Moller, Denery, N. J., caught fire while the truck was rounding Lincoln Square. Firemen used water to put out the fire and cool the underside of the truck.

At 10:30 the local firemen were called to an accident near the Glenn Musselman farm on the Orrtanna-Cashtown Road. A truck owned by John S. Teeter and Sons, Inc., and driven by George Ohler, Emmitsburg, upset, spilling its load of seven tons of stones. Because it was feared a fire would develop, the firemen were called.

A Deep, Strong, Haunting Voice, Abraham Lincoln's, Returns To Historic Gettysburg

Warmed by the rays of a gold October sun, we watched and waited for the "Thatcher Perkins." Flags were fluttering softly in a breeze faintly touched with the tang of autumn. An air of expectancy vibrated through the densely packed crowd milling through Carlisle St., filling the sidewalks and lining the railroad on either side. We were waiting for Mr. Lincoln who would arrive at 1:30.

Khaki-clad Boy Scouts distributed programs to the true tune of patriotic music. Buses were arriving with special guests and people were taking pictures everywhere. Some were "shooting the scene" from the hotel roof top, others raised their cameras above the heads of people, and some were perched atop telephone poles.

Thousands of spectators waited patiently on Lincoln Square and lined Baltimore St. to the National Cemetery. They would miss the

More Than 50,000 People Witness Historic Pageant, "Mr. Lincoln," Saturday

(Pageant Pictures on Pages 3 and 7)

Four score and nine years ago the president of a union of states torn by fratricidal strife, sorrowing for the thousands of dead who already slept in ordered rows where they had fallen in one of the greatest battles in history, came to Gettysburg, that final resting place, to help dedicate a cemetery.

"The world will little note or long remember," he said on that occasion four score and seven years after the Declaration of Independence, but last Saturday crowds variously estimated from 30,000 to 70,000 proved that the world has remembered, as they stood in the National Cemetery and listened spellbound to a great actor of this day recite again the simple truths of the most appealing and majestic words in American literature.

Ray Middleton Portrays Lincoln

Ray Middleton, who portrayed Abraham Lincoln, in the Western Maryland Railway Co.'s presentation of "Mr. Lincoln Goes To Gettysburg," might well consider that on Saturday he reached the very zenith of his distinguished career. Probably never before have Lincoln's words, "The Gettysburg Address," stirred a more profound feeling in the breasts of those who have heard them. Here was no schoolroom piece to be learned and recited. Here was no ordinary occasion. Here was the drama of a great moment being re-enacted, and poor the soul among the listening thousands who missed the significance.

Behind "Mr. Lincoln" this time, instead of before him, were those rows of martyrs, their lives given in the same cause to which he was later to give his. The solemnity of the occasion and the sacredness of the ground whereon those thousands stood could not have failed to sway men's hearts.

Station Bell Rings Again

Earlier in downtown Gettysburg, the events preceding the dedication were re-enacted by Mr. Middleton and a cast of more than 500 persons, most of them Adams County residents. The Western Maryland, climaxing its year-long observance of its own 100th anniversary, turned back the hands of time to November 18 and 19, 1863. Dozens of townspeople waited at the same station, built in 1858, for Lincoln's arrival. Few in this little village of that day had ever seen him.

The bell in the station tower heralded the approach of the "Thatcher Perkins," a locomotive built in 1863. Behind it were the two yellow coaches and the baggage car of the same vintage. An honor guard of Marines jumped from the door of the baggage car and at the double quick formed a guard of honor around the steps where Lincoln was soon to descend.

The reporters, then the photographers who were aboard the train, alighted from the second car. Cabinet members, high-ranking generals, John Nicolay, the president's secretary, and Lincoln's personal servant, stepped down from the train.

President Is Welcomed

Then amid a hush which turned to cheers and handclapping, the president appeared and was greeted by Governor Curtin, Burgess Martin, their ladies, and a host of other notables and politicians. A little girl presented a bouquet of flowers on behalf of the school children of Gettysburg. An old man who lost a son at Gettysburg wept on the president's sympathetic shoulder. It was very real and moving.

Then the Wills House, where Lincoln stayed until he left on the afternoon of the next day for the cemetery, became the focal point for a Lincoln Square jam-packed with humanity. Other notables, Mrs. Wills, Mrs. Curtin and others were presented to the president. The greetings over, he went to his room. But the crowds were not to be denied a further glimpse of him. They clamored, and he raised the sash of a second floor window. They were not those of an orator of the time, as he begged to go, having nothing to say and fear of saying the wrong thing.

Incidents In Diamond

A police officer and Col. John W. Forney, editor of the Lancaster Intelligencer-Journal, broke up an incipient fight when several inebriates sang "We'll Hang Abe Lincoln to a Sour Apple Tree." A spy and several Copperheads were dispersed by the Marines but a woman camp follower had better success. From New York had come Benjamin Perley Poore, a free lance writer to "cover" the dedication. He found the woman with the soldier's cap more attractive than even Mr. Lincoln.

The shades of night fell, marked Saturday by a brief intermission, and then the units formed, as on the famous November 19, for the procession to the cemetery. Mr. Lincoln came from the Wills House, where he had completed his "few appropriate remarks" and mounted his horse. Accompanied by his cabinet officers, generals and aides, he set out Baltimore St. for that plot of hallowed ground.

Time was indeed turned back as the old surreys, the Lafayette gig, the Jenny Lind buggies and the ancient farm wagons began their trek in Mr. Lincoln's wake, behind nearly 200 soldiers of the Army of the Potomac, men from Gettysburg College, in their uniforms of 1863.

More than 1,000 guests were served a delicious picnic buffet lunch by the Western Maryland on the Gettysburg College campus, outside the Plank gymnasium, Saturday noon. The menu consisted of cold beef, ham, cheese, olives, pickles, shrimp salad, coleslaw, anniversary cake, coffee and milk.

A few state and railroad police were unable to cope with the crowd at the Western Maryland station before the two special trains arrived. The area reserved for the pageant cast was not roped off, hence the crowd overflowed across the street and jammed the area. Finally a number of people were persuaded to return to Lincoln Square to make room for the arrival of the trains and the beginning of the pageant.

Many tried to "crash the gate" in the bleachers near the station reserved for the guests. Only those with "guest" badges were admitted.

Tall People's Club Honors Miss Kane With Memorial Beds

The Tower Club of Baltimore has dedicated a memorial to Eileen Kane, one of the most active members of the organization of tall people in that city and one of the leaders in the club's project to raise funds to buy beds for Baltimore hospitals.

Miss Kane died Friday of polio meningitis after an illness of two days. She was 19 years old and the daughter of Maurice W. and Dora Mae Kane of McKnightstown and Baltimore.

An announcement today by the club states that it will raise funds to buy hospital beds for extra tall people and will present them to Baltimore hospitals in honor of Miss Kane.

The local girl, who had been employed in the offices of the Baltimore Sun for the last two years, had left that position three weeks ago to begin training at Sheppard-Pratt Hospital for a career as an occupational therapist. She was an honor graduate of Gettysburg High School in the class of 1950 and had been very active in student organizations during her undergraduate days.

Good News! That licking we got the other day is first-rate news—for it has completely waked up the Whigs—and we shall be able to repay the Pierce-men in their own coin, with interest. It is evident from the news from different parts of the state, that the Whigs were beaten by their own indolence. They have just become sensible of this and are now up and doing, buckling on their armor, and preparing for that great fight in which "Scott Leads the Column."

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SIMPLE GREATNESS

Many readers of this column may never have heard the name of George Stimpson, who died recently in Washington, D. C., but no man was better known there, nor more deeply beloved than he. For several decades he was the friend of Presidents, Senators, Representatives, and scores of newspapermen. He was a former president of the National Press Club, and the author of many widely circulated books.

George Stimpson was one of the best informed men in all America. He searched the world for facts and put them into books. A day did not pass that some noted man did not phone him to get some little-known fact or story. He wrote "Nuggets of Knowledge," "A Book About a Thousand Things," "A Book About the Bible," and many others that sold into the thousands. He was at work on a book about Shakespeare that he had been gathering data on for over a dozen years. His most recent book was "A Book About Politics."

But this isn't what made this man so beloved. It was because he was humble and absolutely selfless. One of the kindest, most lovable men that I have ever known. I knew him intimately and he wrote for my newspaper syndicate for several years. He had a whimsical smile and a beauty of character that charmed everyone who ever met him. He was forever doing kind things for people—especially those who were unfortunate or who had met with some phase of personal disaster. He never turned down a friend, and he gave of his substance gladly when it meant a real sacrifice.

In his small cocoon of an office, in the Washington Press Building, he spun pure silk in the form of knowledge that he had clipped and gathered and preserved in books that might later serve his call. It was inspiring just to sit there and talk with him. He never wasted time. He kept enriching it for the joy and benefit of others. And, now that he is gone, the whole world of those who loved him has suddenly grown smaller.

Like a star in the sky that suddenly falls from its nest, leaving a remembered light, so may friend leave a glow in every heart of those who knew and loved him.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "They."

Just Folks

CHILDHOOD AND AGE

Suppose the children understood
Just what is meant by being good
And washed their hands and were polite
And didn't shout and sometimes fight,
If that could be at twelve or so,
They'd know as much as grownups know.

Suppose at table children sat
And never said, "I don't like that!"
But just as grownups grimly ate
Whatever food was on the plate
And parents never had to scold,
At twelve the children would be old.

If children never make a fuss,
They'd act and talk and look like us.
If they were grave and over-wise,
Had lost the twinkle in their eyes
And all we've learned to them was known,
We couldn't stand them, though our own.

BUSY SCHEDULE FOR "COMMIES" OUTSIDE USSR

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Communist parties outside Russia will be as busy as a dog chasing its tail, under the program outlined for them by Stalin.

He said success for them lay in joining fronts at home and in defending the national rights and interests of their own countries. This might seem like a new Stalin but it wasn't.

He told the non-Russian Communist parties they should continue supporting Russia and its policies because in doing so they were serving the best interests of their own parties.

A Shift Back

So nothing was really changed. It was just a shift back to the popular front idea of pre-World War II days when Hitler had Stalin worried and the Russians wanted to line up the rest of the world against Germany.

Since the popular front idea was dropped after the war, its revival now might be pretty good evidence that Stalin's hopes of what would happen after the war had been messed up a bit.

Western Europe, wrecked by the war, must have looked juicy. If it collapsed the local Communists might have been able to take over without a shot. In that way Stalin could have had it for free.

A Persistent Character

But Western Europe got American help, formed an alliance with this country and did all right. In fact, it's talking of union. Western Germany did all right too. And Japan became an American ally.

Stalin's a persistent character. It might still work out his way if he could break up the alliances and push the Western countries in to go to war with one another.

Maybe he could do it from within through the popular front idea, with the Communist parties in each country suddenly getting nationalistic and pretending to be thinking of their own country.

Danger For Russia

Under that program, in each country the Communists can pretend great patriotism and work to encourage jealousies and antagonisms among the present allies to break them up.

Then if the one-time allies war against each other, the local Communists could step in and pick up the pieces. Of course, there might be a little danger in that for Russia.

Tito in Yugoslavia gave Stalin an example of what intense nationalism can do. When Stalin put the heat on the Yugoslav Communists to knuckle under, Tito broke away.

A Bit Of History About Your Own Adams County

This is the 33rd in a series of historical talks given over Radio Station WGET by Dr. Robert Fortenbaugh, Adeline Sager professor of history at Gettysburg College, on some of the outstanding events and interesting episodes in the development of Adams County.

One of the most important phases in the life of any people is the religious, and one of the most important agencies of social development, therefore, is the organized expression of the religious phase of life which we commonly call the church.

In the beginnings of Adams County, as was to be expected, the people had a religious interest, and their churches consequently were of the highest importance in the development of their social life.

Considering that the area which is now Adams County first began to be truly settled in the 1730's, we will consider here the significance of Presbyterianism and the first Presbyterian churches which played their part in these early days.

The first forms of organized Christian expression in what is now Adams County were in the Congregational district, first by the Roman Catholics, and shortly thereafter by the Lutherans. The former centered around the Jesuit mission which had been regularly maintained from as early as 1720, the latter around St. Michael's of Conewago, close to the site of the present Hanover, but covering the area of part of what is now Adams County. In the easterly and southeasterly part of the area, the principal settlers were Germans. Their coming dates, so far as the present Adams County is concerned, began with the arrival of Andrew Schreiber in 1734.

Scotch-Irish Presbyterians

However, this area was to be more thickly and quickly settled by another racial group northward and westward, which was to become the dominating element in the population for the remainder of the colonial period, the Scotch-Irish. Its people were, practically without exception, Presbyterians.

The Scotch-Irish began to appear in this area in considerable numbers about 1738, coming through the German settlements west of the Susquehanna from a recognized center of Scotch-Irish concentration in the westerly part of the present Lancaster County. In 1732 the Presbyterian of Donegal was erected, and it is from the records of this body that we get clues to the understanding of the beginnings of Presbyterian churches in Adams County.

These early records of the Presbytery of Donegal are, however, somewhat scanty and imperfect, and contain no exact account of the beginnings of the pioneer Presbyterian churches in this vicinity. The first minute occurring in the records concerns the appointment of the Rev. Mr. Caven, then pastor of the Falling Spring Church, at present Chambersburg, "to supply Great Conewago and Marsh Creek."

Came Here In 1738
This he was to do on the first Sabbath of July, 1740. There is no doubt that there were churches already existing, otherwise so specific an appointment could not have been given the Rev. Mr. Caven. This is deduced from our knowledge that the pioneer Presbyterian settlers came into this area as early as 1738, and would have Catholic Church as Mission Sunday.

Father Shanahan gave statistics concerning the work of the missions and the priests and sisters who serve them.

A Bit Of History About Your Own Adams County

This is the 33rd in a series of historical talks given over Radio Station WGET by Dr. Robert Fortenbaugh, Adeline Sager professor of history at Gettysburg College, on some of the outstanding events and interesting episodes in the development of Adams County.

One of the most important phases in the life of any people is the religious, and one of the most important agencies of social development, therefore, is the organized expression of the religious phase of life which we commonly call the church.

In the beginnings of Adams County, as was to be expected, the people had a religious interest, and their churches consequently were of the highest importance in the development of their social life.

Considering that the area which is now Adams County first began to be truly settled in the 1730's, we will consider here the significance of Presbyterianism and the first Presbyterian churches which played their part in these early days.

The first forms of organized Christian expression in what is now Adams County were in the Congregational district, first by the Roman Catholics, and shortly thereafter by the Lutherans. The former centered around the Jesuit mission which had been regularly maintained from as early as 1720, the latter around St. Michael's of Conewago, close to the site of the present Hanover, but covering the area of part of what is now Adams County. In the easterly and southeasterly part of the area, the principal settlers were Germans. Their coming dates, so far as the present Adams County is concerned, began with the arrival of Andrew Schreiber in 1734.

Build Meeting House

The Great Conewago Church had no settled minister for seven or eight years after this recognized date of beginning. In 1747 or 1748 the Rev. Mr. Thompson became the first settled minister, and served for at least 30 years. Some time between 1743 and 1749 the first meeting house was built. It stood only a short distance from the site of the present church. It was made of rough hewn logs, severely plain and not at all comfortable. Just when the Rev. Mr. Thompson's pastorate ended it is not known, but he died in 1787 and was buried in an unmarked grave in the adjoining cemetery.

The second minister was Joseph Henderson, who was called in 1780, being just out of seminary. However, it was now until June 20, 1781, that he was ordained and installed as the second minister to serve this congregation. Six years after he began his work, he led the movement to replace the log structure with the massive native stone building which remains today. That he was a real leader in this venture seems to be indicated by the fact that a circular stone above the entrance, close to the roof, bears this inscription: "Rev. Joseph Henderson's Meeting House — 1787." In 1795 Mr. Henderson resigned after 15 years of devoted ministry. Thus the Great Conewago Church was established and developed into a strong and useful organization.

Marsh Creek Church
In the minutes of the Presbytery is an item dated April 17, 1742 which throws light on the Marsh Creek Church. This says: "Supplication being made by Conewago and Marsh Creek Churches, requesting a committee to be sent to advise about the site of their meeting houses, it is ordered that Samuel Thompson, William Hoe, William Kain and Benjamin Chambers be a committee to meet at the Widow Jackson's the second Tuesday in May."

At the next meeting of the Presbytery this committee reported that "the congregations agree that there shall be two meeting houses, and the people of Marsh Creek are agreed that theirs shall be at a certain spring near Robert McPherson's."

This of course refers to the congregation that is called the Upper Marsh Creek congregation, later removed to Gettysburg, where it continues its long and useful history. The locality of its first church is that of Black's Graveyard, about two miles northwest of Gettysburg.

Worshipped In Homes
It was some years before a meeting house was built for the Upper Marsh Creek congregation at the site just indicated. Very probably the congregation worshipped in private homes. The best date for the erection of the first church is 1747. This date is arrived at by an official paper preserved at Harrisburg. This is an application made by Hance Hamilton, Robert McPherson, Samuel Eddie and John Buchanan for a warrant for 100 acres of land in Cumberland Twp. on May 25, 1765. The applicants state that "a meeting house was erected by said congregation on a tract of 100 acres in the Manor of Masque about 18 years ago, and ever since used and enjoyed by them." This fixes the date at 1747.

The first minister was probably the Rev. Joseph Tate, who probably accepted a call in April 1746. Exactly how long he may have preached to this congregation cannot be determined. All is uncertain until the ministry of the Rev. Robert McMorde is reached. Exactly when he began his ministry is again not certain. It was probably in 1753, for in April, 1760, Mr. McMorde gave a receipt for some money "in full of six years' stipend" to a certain person, about a year later to the same person "in full of seven years' stipend."

Served 19 Years
This pastoral relation was dissolved in April, 1761. From 1761 to 1775 Upper Marsh Creek congregation was without a pastor. In the latter year the Rev. John Black began his pastorate of 19 years, although he had previously supplied the pulpit at intervals during a year or longer. In 1787 the congregation was incorporated as the "Upper Presbyterian Church of Marsh Creek in the County of York." Thus, the Upper Marsh Creek Church was established and developed into a strong and useful organization.

It is probable that the Lower Marsh Creek Church, which has been vigorously active at its location since 1790 midway between Gettysburg and Fairfield, originated in the great division in the Presbyterian Church which began in 1741 and continued until 1758, the "old side" and the "new side."

Lower Marsh Creek congregation was of the "new side."

Sometime about 1741 the Rev. Alexander Bay became the first pastor of this congregation and continued to serve it until about 1760. For several years the church was supplied and in 1765 the Rev. John Stemmer began a nine-year pastorate.

The first building, erected in the 1740's, stood on the banks of Marsh Creek, some two miles northeast of the present location and near the graveyard which still may be recognized.

In 1790 the present stone church was erected at the present site. Two years later the Rev. William Paxton began his pastorate which was to last for 53 years. So the Lower Marsh Creek Church was organized and developed, and made its great contribution to the religious life of the county.

One of the purposes of early automobile clubs was to overcome antagonism of lively stable operators who frequently

Lehigh Hands Bullets 2nd Straight Loss 15-7

Gettysburg College's football team failed to take advantage of its first quarter opportunities and lost to Lehigh University, 15-7, for its second consecutive loss, before 7,000 Dad's Day fans at Bethlehem, Saturday.

All of the scoring but two points was crammed in to the final quarter, but those two points, which came when Bob Eppelman was tackled in the end zone by Charles Adams, broke Gettysburg's back.

After the Bullets kicked off following the safety, Lehigh put on a sustained drive of 65 yards for its first touchdown which came in 2:13. Julian Clark, the Engineers' split-T quarterback, sparked the drive with his fine running and passing, and finally crashed over from one-foot out. Walt Trillhaase added the extra point.

Gettysburg retaliated a few minutes later when Bill Weitzel recovered Bob Bolte's fumble on the Lehigh 40. On the first play, Jim Hammond faked back and tossed a perfect pass to Bill Yocum down the middle. Yocum took the ball on his 17, reversed his field, and went over for the score. Bill Pratt added his seventh straight placement of the season.

Engineers Score Again
Lehigh couldn't gain following the kickoff. Harry Stolz punted to Earl Yost on the Bullet 15 and he returned to the 29 where he was hit hard and fumbled with Lehigh recovering. The Bullets held on their own 12, and with 3:40 to go, they drove to the Gettysburg 41 for a first down. After Hammond had been thrown for an eight-yard loss on an attempted pass, Joe Moyer intercepted another Hammond pass and ran it back to the Gettysburg 14. The officials penalized the Bullets for their own 1 for unnecessary roughness, and Dave Walters plunged over for the score.

In the first period, the Bullets recovered a Lehigh fumble on the Lehigh 36, but three penalties helped stall the drive. Ward finally punted from the midfield stripe out of bounds on the Lehigh 18. Minutes later Gettysburg had another opportunity when a poor punt by Westfall rolled dead on the Lehigh 39. In four plays the Bullets gained but two yards and Lehigh took over. The Bullets safety came in 11:47 of the third quarter—Bill Yocum had plunged into the line and gained nothing on two tries. On third down, Ward tried a pitchout to Eppelman who was nailed as he received the ball for the safety.

On Saturday, Gettysburg will play host to a stubborn Muhlenberg football team in one of the features of Homecoming. The Mules, like Gettysburg, are having trouble this season having won over Lafayette, tied Rutgers, and lost to Bucknell and Albright.

CANNERS JOLT MANHEIM 39-7 BY AIR ATTACK

Clyde Coulson and Terry Hutton teamed up as a passing combination to lead the Biglerville High Canniers to a 39-7 victory over Manheim Central at Manheim Saturday afternoon in a Conference of the Roses football game.

Twice the combine clicked for scores and another time set the stage for a TD.

Early in the first period the Canniers recovered a Manheim fumble on the 21 from where Coulson and Hutton chalked up their first TD on an aerial.

Coach Gene Haas' outfit marched 56 yards for their second score which resulted on a Coulson-Hutton aerial in the second quarter.

Later in the same stanza Coulson fired a 20-yard pass to Hutton on the 25 and several plays later Gene Stary pounded through the line from the 5 to make the half time count 20-0.

Grim On Long Run
In the third quarter Elson Grim ran 72 yards to reach the Manheim 18 and three plays later Coulson plunged over.

Near the close of the third frame the Canniers blocked a Manheim punt and took possession on the Manheim 6-yard line from where Grimm crashed over.

Manheim tallied its lone score in the final period when Becker raced over from the 8 on an end-around play.

Gene Sheaffer intercepted a Baron pass and ran 22 yards to score Biglerville final six-pointer.

The victory was the second in a row for Biglerville and their third of the season. Palmyra, defending conference champion, will be met by the Canniers at Biglerville Friday evening.

UNBEATEN LIST CUT DOWN IN PA.

HARRISBURG (AP)—Nineteen major Pennsylvania scholastic grid powers have survived the first half of the 1952 campaign without being defeated or tied.

The list was shortened by seven over the week end, the season's sixth end-of-week mark. Among four Western Pennsylvania and three eastern teams tasting defeat for the first time this year were two which had compiled spotless records in regular season play last year. One had a 15 game winning streak, the other had won 14 in a row.

The major all-winning eleven: East—West Scranton, Old Forge, Minersville, Lansford, Nesquehoning, Abington, Upper Darby, York, Steelton.

West—Altoona, Beaver Falls, Washington, Wilkesburg, Bellwood - Antis, Ebensburg, Shade Twp., DuBois, Lock Haven, and Greenville.

Lowestown's Panthers lost the lot of favorites in the Western Conference title scramble and lost their 14-game winning streak at the same time in dropping a 12-6 decision to Lock Haven.

3-WAY RACE IN NATIONAL LOOP IS DEVELOPING

New York Giants are tied for the American Conference title of the National Football League won't be decided until the final weeks of play, while, on the other hand, the National division race has developed into a one-team stranglehold.

Three clubs — the Cleveland Browns, Chicago Cardinals and New York Giants — are tied for the American section lead with 3-1 records. And right behind are the Philadelphia Eagles and the Washington Redskins with 2-2 slates. Only the winless Pittsburgh Steelers are hopelessly out of contention.

The pulverizing San Francisco 49ers rule the roost in the National Conference with a 4-0 record. Two games in arrears are the Chicago Bears, Detroit Lions and Green Bay Packers, each with a pair of triumphs in four starts. The defending champion Los Angeles Rams (1-3) and the Dallas Texans (0-4), the league's newest entry, trail the pack.

Cardinals Trip Giants
In yesterday's action, the unheralded Cardinals eked out a vital 24-23 conquest over the previously unschattered Giants. Meanwhile the Browns, crushed the Eagles, 49-7. The victories enabled Cleveland and Chicago to jump into the triple tie for first place with New York.

San Francisco embellished its stature with a resounding 40-16 success over the Bears while the Lions remained in contention by vanquishing Los Angeles, 24-16.

The Redskins nipped Pittsburgh, 28-24, in the day's other game. On Saturday night Green Bay thumped Dallas, 24-14.

Fleet-footed Ollie Matson and sub-quarterback Don Panceria, a couple of ex-San Francisco University luminaries, were instrumental in the Cards' upset over the Giants.

Eagles' Worst Trouncing
Trailing, 23-17, in the fourth period, Chicago marched 71 yards to its winning touchdown that was set up by a 35-yard Panceria aerial.

On a fourth-down play Matson culminated the drive, sprinting six yards into pay dirt. Joe Geri booted the important extra point.

Cleveland's vaunted passing attack with flashy Otto Graham at the helm and a prolific-kicking exhibition by Lou Broza hogged the spotlight as the Eagles suffered their worst trouncing since 1933.

The golden toe of Broza accounted for seven straight extra points. That gave him a total of 86 consecutive conversions over the last three years for a league record.

This surpassed the former mark of 84, held by Philadelphia's Cliff Patton.

Washington started and finished strong against the Steelers. The Redskins registered two quick scores in the first period and then roared from behind in the final stanza to overhaul Pittsburgh, 4-43-yard passing play on Eddie Le Baron to Hugh Taylor sent the Skins in front for good.

Hockey Champs

ARE IN CELLAR

By The Associated Press
The Pittsburgh Hornets and Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League find themselves in a strange position today—chasing the rest of the field.

Last year, when the league was split into two divisions, the Hornets won the western crown and the Bears the eastern. This season the league is not split and the Hornets and Bears are tied for last place.

Both teams lost their second games in as many starts last night. The Bears bowed, 5-3, to Providence's pace-setting Red Wings while the Hornets dropped a 5-4, overtime decision to the St. Louis Flyers.

In the only other game, the Buffalo Bisons smothered the Syracuse Warriors, 7-2.

60-Foot Screen Shot
Defenseman Joe Lund's 60-foot screen shot in sudden death overtook the Hornets at St. Louis. Harry Taylor of the Flyers sent the game into overtime by scoring during the final two minutes of play in the third period to snarl the count at 4-4.

The Bisons coasted to victory over Syracuse. Lorne Davis, Vern Kaiser and Art Rose sparked Buffalo's drive with a pair of goals each.

DELONE STOPS YORK CATHOLIC GRIDDERS 20-6

Delone Catholic High brought its football record to 2-4 for the season by scoring in each of the last two periods to defeat York Catholic on the latter's field Sunday afternoon 20-6 before approximately 2,000 fans.

Early in the second period Delone initiated its first TD drive when Miller's third down quick kick went straight up into the air and bounded back to York's 37 from where the Squires recovered after the ball had struck a York player.

After Tom G. Smith picked up four yards through the line, Miller fired a pass to the same lad on the York 18. Big Tom Smith pounded through center for 10 and four plays later crashed over. Larry Myers' plunge for the extra point was stopped.

York came right back in the waning minutes of the half and moved 54 yards on pass plays. Keffer lateralled to Holtzer who whipped a pass to Mann for 31 yards which placed the ball on the Delone 23. Keffer passed to Holtzer on the 5 and he reached the 1 before being halted. Keffer plowed over for the score. Big Tom Smith blocked Shindelf's kick for the point as the half ended 6-6.

Intercepts Pass

Shortly after the second half opened Little Tom Smith intercepted a York pass on the Delone 42 from where the Squires moved for a score. Miller tossed a pass to Little Tom Smith and the latter squirmed 27 yards for the tally. Miller smacked through the line for the TD.

In the last period Delone chalked up four straight first downs in a sustained drive which wound up with Wil Noel crashing over from the 1. Again Miller added the point on a plunge.

Delone had a 13-6 advantage in first downs. The Squires connected on five of eight passes while York completed four of 14 and two were intercepted.

Next Sunday Delone will be host to St. Matthew's of Conshohocken at McSherrystown.

4 Teams Ready In Eastern Pro Loop

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP)—Teams from four Pennsylvania cities are definitely ready to play ball in the Eastern Professional Basketball League this winter.

Assurances that Sunbury, Lancaster, Berwick and Williamsport will field teams were given yesterday to William D. Morgan, League president, at a meeting here.

Morgan said he felt sure the loop, which operated with six members last year, will operate for the seventh consecutive season.

He added that Lebanon, Harrisburg, Hazleton, Pottsville and Reading had expressed interest in entering the league.

Last year's members were Williamsport, Sunbury, Pottsville, Lancaster, Reading and York-Ashland-Hazleton.

Morgan called a meeting in Sunbury Nov. 2 to settle the makeup of the league and the schedule.

BARRED CAGERS MAY BE PLAYED BY AMERICAN

ELMIRA, N. Y. (AP)—Signs increased today that the American Basketball League would vote at its meeting Thursday to allow use of players involved in the college point spread investigation.

Harl Robacher, president of the Elmira Colonels, said he expected favorable notes from Elmira, Jersey City, Scranton and Wilkes-Barre.

And Robert Gass, spokesman for the Saratoga-Harlem Yankees, said in Saratoga Springs his club favored allowing the former college players in the league.

Robacher said it was possible teams from Bridgeport, Conn., and Manchester, N. H., might enter the league. He said he did not know their attitude, or that of Hazleton, Pa., the sixth present member.

The National Basketball Association has barred such players for life. Maurice Podoloff, president of the NBA, has said no NBA team would be allowed to play exhibitions with or farm players to ABL teams which have such players.

Lamps Aid Winter Sun In Growing Window Garden

Winter gardening methods have been greatly improved by research in the effectiveness of artificial light on plant growth. It is possible for any one to have flowering plants in the house, even though a sunny window is not available.

By using a photographic light meter, which nearly all amateur photographers now possess, you can check the light from your best window to see whether the daylight is adequate for the plants you wish to grow.

An intensity of 50 foot candles for 12 hours a day is sufficient to develop the flowers of bulbs, such as tulips, daffodils, Paper White narcissi, lily of the valley, and amaryllis. To measure the light that falls on the place where your plants can be kept, lay two sheets of white paper flat, one above the other. Hold a Weston light meter six inches above the paper, being careful not to cast a shadow. Multiply the meter reading by four and you will have approximately the foot-candles of light available to your plants.

The bulbs take less light than other flowering pot plants, which need about 500 foot candles each 12 hours, and should not be attempted except in a south window, which enjoys direct sunlight or a large east, west or north window which receives the full reflected light of the sky.

Temperature is important in growing indoor flowers, next to light. There is more trouble from high temperatures than from low. Here windows which do not face south enjoy an advantage. Plants can be kept close to the glass, where the temperature is more stable, and usually much cooler than in the center of the room. An ideal temperature for flowering plants would be 60 degrees, with humidity of 60-70 but most of the subjects which amateurs grow are tolerant of a considerable range. When the average temperature rises much higher than 70 degrees during the day and 65 at night, soft growth, with weak stems, is likely. Never allow plants to stand on a radiator, or near one. Humidity may be increased by keeping saucers or pans of water near the plants.

Watering is the third important factor affecting plants. The old fashioned method of soaking the soil with water, then allowing it to dry out, is still the best one. As the soil dries, air enters, insuring the roots necessary oxygen. When methods of automatic watering are used, there may be danger of keeping the soil saturated, so that air is excluded.

If a large pan can be provided holding two or three inches of sand, pots can stand on this sand; and if water is kept standing just below the bottom of the pot, moisture will be taken up by the pot as needed.

Another way is to insert in the pot, through the drainage hole at the bottom, a wick of fibre glass, or a piece of clothes line. If the top of the wick is imbedded in the soil, and the bottom drops into a pan of water, the soil will be kept moist without saturation. To arrange either of these devices requires some ingenuity, but it can be done at small expense.

DEMOCRATS ARE WARNED ABOUT VOTER POLLS

HARRISBURG (AP)—A state Democratic leader today advised party members "not to be misled into complacency" by election polls as Pennsylvania prepared for its first visit in two years from President Harry S. Truman.

Noting that "Dr. Gallup, from his ivory tower in Princeton," reports the Democratic party is continuing to gain in the presidential race, Maurice Spaulding Jr., Democratic state chairman, said:

"That happens to be true but it does not make the Gallup Poll any more reliable."

Warns His Party
"Even the most impartial political poll, if there are any such, cannot predict the results of any election with sufficient accuracy to be trustworthy."

He then "warned" all Democrats "not to be misled into complacency by polls favoring the Democratic cause or discourage by polls showing Republican strength."

The President opens his Pennsylvania tour with a downtown street corner speech in Philadelphia tomorrow afternoon. He speaks in nine other Pennsylvania cities before leaving the state Thursday.

Sparkman Here
Whistle stop talks are set for Reading, Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, Bloomsburg, Sunbury, Altoona, and Johnstown. Major speeches will be made at Pottsville Tuesday night and Pittsburgh the following evening.

Meanwhile, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, Sen. John J. Sparkman, completed a jaunt through the Keystone State with an appearance at a $100 a plate dinner in Philadelphia Saturday night.

Hitting at what he called the Republicans' "philosophy of fear," Sparkman accused his opponents of waging a "phony crusade."

FACTS FOR ASPARAGUS GROWERS

The editor's desk is often an interesting and quite accurate barometer of farm and garden planning. For examples, when there is reviving interest in orchards there will be numerous inquiries about planting and varieties; when prospective growers are thinking about bramble fruit there will arrive many questions about raspberries and other small fruits. In recent weeks the predominant trend has been toward asparagus.

This is an encouraging sign because asparagus is one of the most profitable vegetables grown when measured in terms of quantity and quality of food produced for home consumption over a long period of years.

Many letters on the subject of asparagus culture obviously come from persons who are unacquainted with the crop. Therefore, suggestions here offered will be couched in language beginners may easily understand and hence will likewise be easily put into action by more experienced gardeners.

Roots ordered from a reputable nursery should be planted in early March or as early in the spring as soil and weather conditions permit.

In order to facilitate early planting as well as the provide ideal growing conditions, soil should be made ready before winter. Perhaps major emphasis should be placed and kept on soil preparation because this vegetable will occupy the site for many years, thereby stressing thorough and careful attention to the correction of any defects before planting is done.

First, the site should be well drained and sunny so that the soil warms up early in the spring. Two or a few long rows along the north side of the garden are usually better than several short rows in a square or nearly square bed.

Because asparagus plants send their long roots amazingly deep and far for moisture and sustenance, the soil must be mellow to a liberal depth. Too, it must be amply balanced with moisture-holding organic matter. Future fertilization will not and cannot amend defects which should have been eradicated in the original preparation. There is no substitute for a naturally deep and fertile loam but in most cases an ordinary garden soil may be improved to measure up to these standards by turning under in the fall a heavy application of manure or well rotted compost. Green grass or green immature weeds may be utilized earlier in the season to deepen shallow soils and lighten heavy loams.

Asparagus demands an alkaline soil reaction. This fact explains why gardeners formerly applied salt to asparagus beds. If there are any doubts about the soil's alkalinity, lime should be applied before winter.

If the present soil is somewhat heavy and shallow it may be greatly improved by adding and working in to a depth of 15 to 20 inches or more a liberal quantity of rich fance row loam in addition to the manure or compost.

Commercial fertilizers are applied before planting time. On this and other planting phases of the subject interested readers are urged to write the editor soon, enclosing a stamped and addressed envelope, for free copies of our simple asparagus planting and care instructions. Of course, all related questions will be gladly answered at the same time.

ONLY COMFORTABLE HENS LAY
Flock comfort is second to no other factor in successful and profitable poultry keeping. This is as true of a small farm flock as of a large commercial business. And of course, it is more difficult to keep hens comfortable in winter than it is at any other time of the year. But the demand cannot be ignored. Therefore, all flock owners must within the next few weeks do the building or make the necessary repairs to induce hens to lead a busy life from now until spring.

There are three main essentials in building a new poultry house or in making general repairs to an old house. They are: (1) Flock comfort; (2) Economy; and (3) Convenience.

Dampness and drafts are the two main bane of winter poultry flocks. Both can be corrected or avoided by proper ventilation. The moisture which hens give off in cold weather by their breath and in their droppings must be carried away promptly. The only means by which this is possible is to have free circulation of air at all times. Such circulation without direct drafts is the problem which every owner must solve for his particular house and flock.

In addition to good circulation of air and dryness, hens need plenty of room. Small flocks require more floor space per bird than large flocks. A safe working rule is to allow between three and four square feet per hen.

The house should be located where it gains maximum advantages from direct sunshine in winter, preferably facing south or southeast, with larger buildings or trees or a shrub border forming a windbreak to protect it from prevailing cold winds.

A long and narrow house provides less winter comfort than a square or nearly square building. Too, less materials are needed to construct a square than a long rectangular house.

If the size of the flock requires a large house, solid partitions should be placed every 40 feet to prevent drafts that are present in large, single-room houses.

In this part of the country it is extremely difficult to keep hens productively comfortable in winter unless the house walls are double-lined and insulated. Single-walled houses suffer so quickly from changes of outside temperature that hens seldom lay uniformly over winter while the flock may suffer severely from diseases unless the walls are insulated.

The number and location of windows are factors which contribute directly to flock comfort and health.

It is difficult to maintain winter flocks in health on raised wood floors. Not only are such floors invitations to rats and mice as sources of diseases and causes of low temperature, but they are more likely to remain damp. A concrete floor in the poultry house pays big dividends in safety and flock well being.

Housed in a dry, properly ventilated building, hens have one other major requirement for sustained winter egg production — proper feeds to nourish their bodies and leave a nice balance of materials which they can turn into eggs. An uncomfortable hen will not lay profitably in winter regardless of how well she is fed, but with proper housing it is certainly unwise and impractical to follow a program of skimpy and unbalanced rations. Both comfortable housing and proper feeding are inseparable "musts" to keep the winter egg basket full.

WOODY PLANTS FROM SEED
A recent discussion here about growing trees, shrubs, and woody vines from seed has elicited numerous inquiries from our readers about which seed should be planted in the fall and which in the spring. Too, several want to know what is meant by the advice to "stratify" seed over winter.

In terms to actual practice, stratification means to allow certain seeds to "ripen." For example, to grow persimmon trees from seed requires storage of the seeds in a cool, moist cellar over winter or burial in a well drained soil. During this storage the seed matures or ripens, and then, when it is planted in early spring, it is ready to germinate naturally and rapidly. Stratification is, in fact, man's imitation of what occurs when a persimmon falls from a tree and lies over winter covered by leaves and other litter, later to germinate and produce or reproduce its kind. Man is merely doing by artificial methods what Nature does simply and effectively.

But of course, all seeds do not require over-winter stratification. There are three groupings of seed as regards treatment before planting: (1) Those which require stratification over winter and planting in early spring; (2) Those which should be planted as soon as the seed matures; and (3) Those which should be stored dry over winter and planted in the spring.

Among seeds which should be stratified are: apple, apricot, ash, barberry, beech, bittersweet, boxwood, cherry, cotoneaster, dogwood, firethorn, flowering quince, fringe tree, hackberry, hawthorn, holly, honeysuckle, horse-chestnut (buckeye), juniper, linden, magnolia, maidenhair tree (gingko), maples which ripen their seed in autumn, papaw, peach, pear, pearlshell, persimmon, plum, privet, viburnums (snowball), sweet gum, poplar, yew, quince, locust, and shadblow. Usually most experienced growers add to this list the nuts of black walnut, shagbark hickory, and butternut trees. However, these nuts will likewise grow if planted in late fall or any time after they ripen.

In group No. 2 are birch, elm, maples which ripen their seeds in late spring and early summer, and oaks. In most cases these should be planted soon after they mature.

In the third group, those whose seeds should be stored dry in bags, jars or other closed containers over winter and planted in early spring, are: althea, arborvitae, catalpa, chaste tree, cryptomeria, larch, mock orange, mulberry, oriental species of pear, sycamore, redbud, spruce, and sweetshrub.

One of the most satisfactory way to stratify seed is to place an inch layer of slightly moist sand in a suitably sized box and on this a thin layer of seed. Then sand and seed layers should be alternated until a liberal layer of sand forms the top. Then the box should be encased with screen to bar rodents. The box may be placed in a cool, moist cellar over winter or buried on a heavy layer of coal ashes in a well drained garden bed where there is no danger of standing water at any time.

Small seeds may be separated from the sand for planting by sifting. In most cases planting should be done as early as soil and weather conditions permit. Shoots from rapidly germinating seed may need later protection from unseasonal frosts.

Duane Carter Wins 50-Mile Race Sunday

WILLIAMS GROVE, Pa. (AP)—Duane Carter, Culver City, Calif., beat off a persistent Tommy Hinnershitz of Reading, Pa., yesterday to take a three car length victory in the 50-lap Ted Horn Memorial big car race at the half-mile Williams Grove Speedway.

Culver's winning time of 22 minutes, 18.31 seconds, a track record, allowed him to retire the Ted Horn trophy with his second triumph in the race. He won the event two years ago.

The new speedway record was more than 10 seconds better than the previous standard of 22 minutes, 28.49 seconds set by Johnny Mantz, Long Beach, Calif., in 1949.

Thousands Throng Square To See Lincoln

Gettysburg was crowded with visitors Saturday afternoon to witness the Western Maryland's presentation of "Mr. Lincoln Goes to Gettysburg," a re-enactment of the president's visit here in 1863. The above photograph shows part of the huge throng in Lincoln Square.

The others lay much of the charm and the color of the pageant, with its exact attention to historical accuracy in every respect possible. Women in hoop skirts, men in frock coats, tall beaver hats and flowered waistcoats.

The Wills House looked much as it must have looked in 1863. The large plate glass windows of the Rea and Derick drug store were covered by a simulated brick facade like the upper stories.

The Berlin Fife and Drum Corps and a small unit of the Spring Garden Band were in the parade, along with members of the B and O Glee Club of Baltimore and the crowds of costumed townspeople. Edward Everett was late in ascending the speaker's platform, having been driving over the battlefield. He took a bow but did not speak. NBC Radio Announcer Ben Grauer explaining, in his narrative account of the proceedings, that the scholarly speech lasted nearly two hours and was too long for inclusion in Saturday's ceremonies.

Actor Caught Lincoln Spirit
When Ward Hill Lamont (Dr. Howard S. Fox) rose, and stepped to the front of the platform, he presented "The President of the United States."

Mr. Lincoln stepped to the forefront of history in the next brief, three-minute scene. A hush fell over the huge throng in the cemetery, from the costumed persons in the front ranks through the assemblage to the gate of the cemetery itself and beyond, when amplifiers brought the sepulchral words.

"Four score and seven years ago..." There was not a sound except Middleton's deep, resonant voice. The actor himself seemed to have caught the spirit of the real Lincoln, as he began the famed words which have since been heard around the world in many languages.

21-Gun Salute
Lincoln clutched the paper on which were written his immortal words, but not once did he refer to it. At one point the crowds could hear the crash of paper as he clenched it in his hand, hidden from the spectators.

He spoke first with hands at sides, head bowed slightly, as if cognizant of those honored dead behind him. At other times his right hand gripped the lapel of his frock coat. Again, both hands clung to the lapels.

He concluded "The Gettysburg Address." "That Government of the People, By the People, For the People, shall not perish from the earth." The silence was almost sacred. As in 1863, there was no applause. Then the big gun in Zeigler's Grove began booming the presidential salute of 21 guns. A great event in history had been revived.

Parade Of Flags
The glee club, a quartet and a soloist, lent inspiration and solemnity to the cemetery program with the singing of the Ode and the Dirge just as they were sung on that day 89 years ago, and other songs of the time, "We're Tenting Tonight," "Battle Hymn of the Republic" were interspersed.

At the ceremonies concluded, there was a parade of the flags of the Union states, and then, as the fife and drum corps played "Dixie," the Confederate flags came forth.

The grand finale witnessed the flying of the flags of all those states later admitted to the Union and the singing of "God Bless America."

The costumed groups and those on the platform began moving and one of the greatest events in the history of Gettysburg since the first dedication ceremony was over.

Before the arrival of the Lincoln Train, a 12-car special Western Maryland Railway brought several hundred guests who ate lunch at Camp Siding and disembarked at the Carlisle St. station.

In theater parlance, the re-enactment was billed on programs given away during the afternoon.

"Western Maryland Railway Company, on the occasion of the company's 100th anniversary presents Ray Middleton and the Citizens of Gettysburg in Mr. Lincoln Goes to Gettysburg."

Connolly Writes Narrative
The narrative was by Marc Connolly, Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright from a scenario by Adele Gutman Nathan, who directed the pageant; Ray Sovey was art director; Dr. James Allan Bush, musical director; Art Mayberry, technical director; Alfred Stern, production executive; Don Swann, general stage manager, and Mrs. Madeleine Killalea, production assistant. Narrators were Ben Grauer and Joseph Rosenfeld, who also played the part of Everett at the cemetery.

Leading characters in addition to Middleton included the following:
Secretary of State Seward, Arthur Buehler; Secretary of the Interior Usher, Donald C. Joseph; Postmaster General Blair, Richard Krick; Governors of Maryland, New York and Ohio, David Willis Bridges, Rev. Harold V. March, and Jay W. Bringham and Charles B. Bender, both representing Ohio; M. Mercier, French minister, George Naugle; M. Bertinatti, Italian minister, Harold Raffensperger; Maj. Gen. Couch, Leo Baker; the Rev. Thomas Stockton, chaplain of the House of Representatives, the Rev. Dr. Ralph R. Gresh; Gen. Fry, provost marshal, Robert Fidler; Ward Hill Lamont, who introduced Lincoln, the Rev. Dr. Howard S. Fox; Wayne McVeagh, politician, William I. Shields, Burgess and Mrs. William G. Weaver played the parts of Burgess and Mrs. Martin John S. Rice was Gov. Curtin and Marjorie Noble, Mrs. Curtin; Crosby Hartzell, Judge Willis; Mrs. Willis, Mrs. Betty Kenworthy; Mrs. Virginia Derck was a spy and H. Wayne Weagley and Thomas Treher "copperheads." Crash Near Littlestown

Five were injured in an accident at 10 o'clock Sunday night one mile north of Littlestown on the Gettysburg Road.

State police said Charles Everhart, 28, of 16 Lombard St., Littlestown, was driving north when, police say, he attempted to pass another car. When Everhart swung around the machine, he collided head-on with a car being driven south by Edward Kress, 24, of 68 Crouse Park, Littlestown. Everhart, with a bruised chest and bruises of the legs, was admitted to the Warner Hospital, as was Kress, who had a dislocated right hip and lacerations of the scalp and concussion of the head. Everhart was alone in his vehicle.

Others in the Kress car who were injured were his father, Walter Kress, 58, Littlestown, who suffered several broken ribs, a bruised face, bruised left side, and dislocation of the left shoulder; the driver's mother, Mrs. Pauline Kress, 52, of Littlestown, who had contusions of the face, a laceration of the lower lip, had several upper teeth knocked out, had her thumb dislocated and her left wrist fractured. Betty Petri, 18, of Littlestown, had a contused forehead, lacerations of the right arm. Those injured in the accident were brought to the hospital for treatment, or admission, in the ambulance and in cars of physicians called to the scene.

In both accidents state police are continuing their investigation. Property damage in the accident near Littlestown was estimated at "more than $2,000." Damage to the Forsythe car, at Cash-town, was estimated at $225.

COAL MINERS OUT ON STRIKE

PITTSBURGH (AP)—More than half the country's 375,000 soft coal miners refused to work today as a protest against the government-ordered cut in the $1.95 daily wage boost they recently won from the industry.

Come-to-work whistles were ignored by 67,500 miners in Western and Central Pennsylvania alone. These miners joined the 160,000 miners who refused to work last week across the nation while the Wage Stabilization Board was debating approval of the pay hike for miners formerly earning a basic minimum daily wage of $16.35.

After the WSB approved $1.50 of the pay increase, bringing the new basic daily wage to $17.85, more miners joined their idle fellow workers. Now at least 227,000 are staying away from work, including 30,000 in Kentucky, 12,000 in Ohio, 8,500 in Indiana, 17,000 in Illinois and 700 in Oklahoma.

The walkout came at a time when coal stocks are at a near record high. The estimated 85 million tons of stored coal is the biggest stockpile in history except for 1942 when the supply of coal above ground was around 10 million tons. Ample supplies mean that industry and households won't feel a coal shortage for two months or more.

Red Fanatics Defy Own Fire In Futile Try To Take Hills

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Hordes of screaming Chinese Reds charged recklessly through their own artillery fire Sunday and early today but failed in an attempt to recapture two important Central Front hills.

U. S. and South Korean soldiers on Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge forced back the fanatic Communists in fierce hand-to-hand fighting.

Thunderous artillery, mortars and Katusha rockets supported the Communists. Allied front-line officers estimated a full regiment—3,000 to 3,500 men—advanced on each of the hills north of Kumhwa late Sunday.

Hold Pike's Peak
At last report, the Communists held Pike's Peak, the northwestern knob of Triangle Hill. Allied troops controlled the rest of the rocky mass.

After bitter hand-to-hand fighting, the Reds called off their attack at 9 a.m. today and holed up in bunkers and caves to the north. Allied fighter-bombers swooped over Papa-san Mountain, overlooking both hills, and unloaded tons of bombs, rockets and searing gasoline on the Communist staging area.

Two miles to the east, the Communists advanced to the top of Pinpoint Hill, highest point on Sniper Ridge. South Korean 2nd Division troops counterattacked and drove them off.

Heavy Enemy Fire
AP correspondent John Fujii said the sturdy Republic of Korea troops were in control of all their old positions by 1:45 p.m.

U. N. officers estimated 40,000 rounds of Red artillery, mortar and rocket fire fell at or near Sniper Ridge and another 5,000 rounds of mortar and artillery at or near Triangle Hill between dusk Sunday and 9 a.m.

South Korean troops with grenades and rifles fought today toward the crest of Iron Horse Mountain, a West-Central Front height northeast of Chorwon.

At last report the issue was still in doubt.

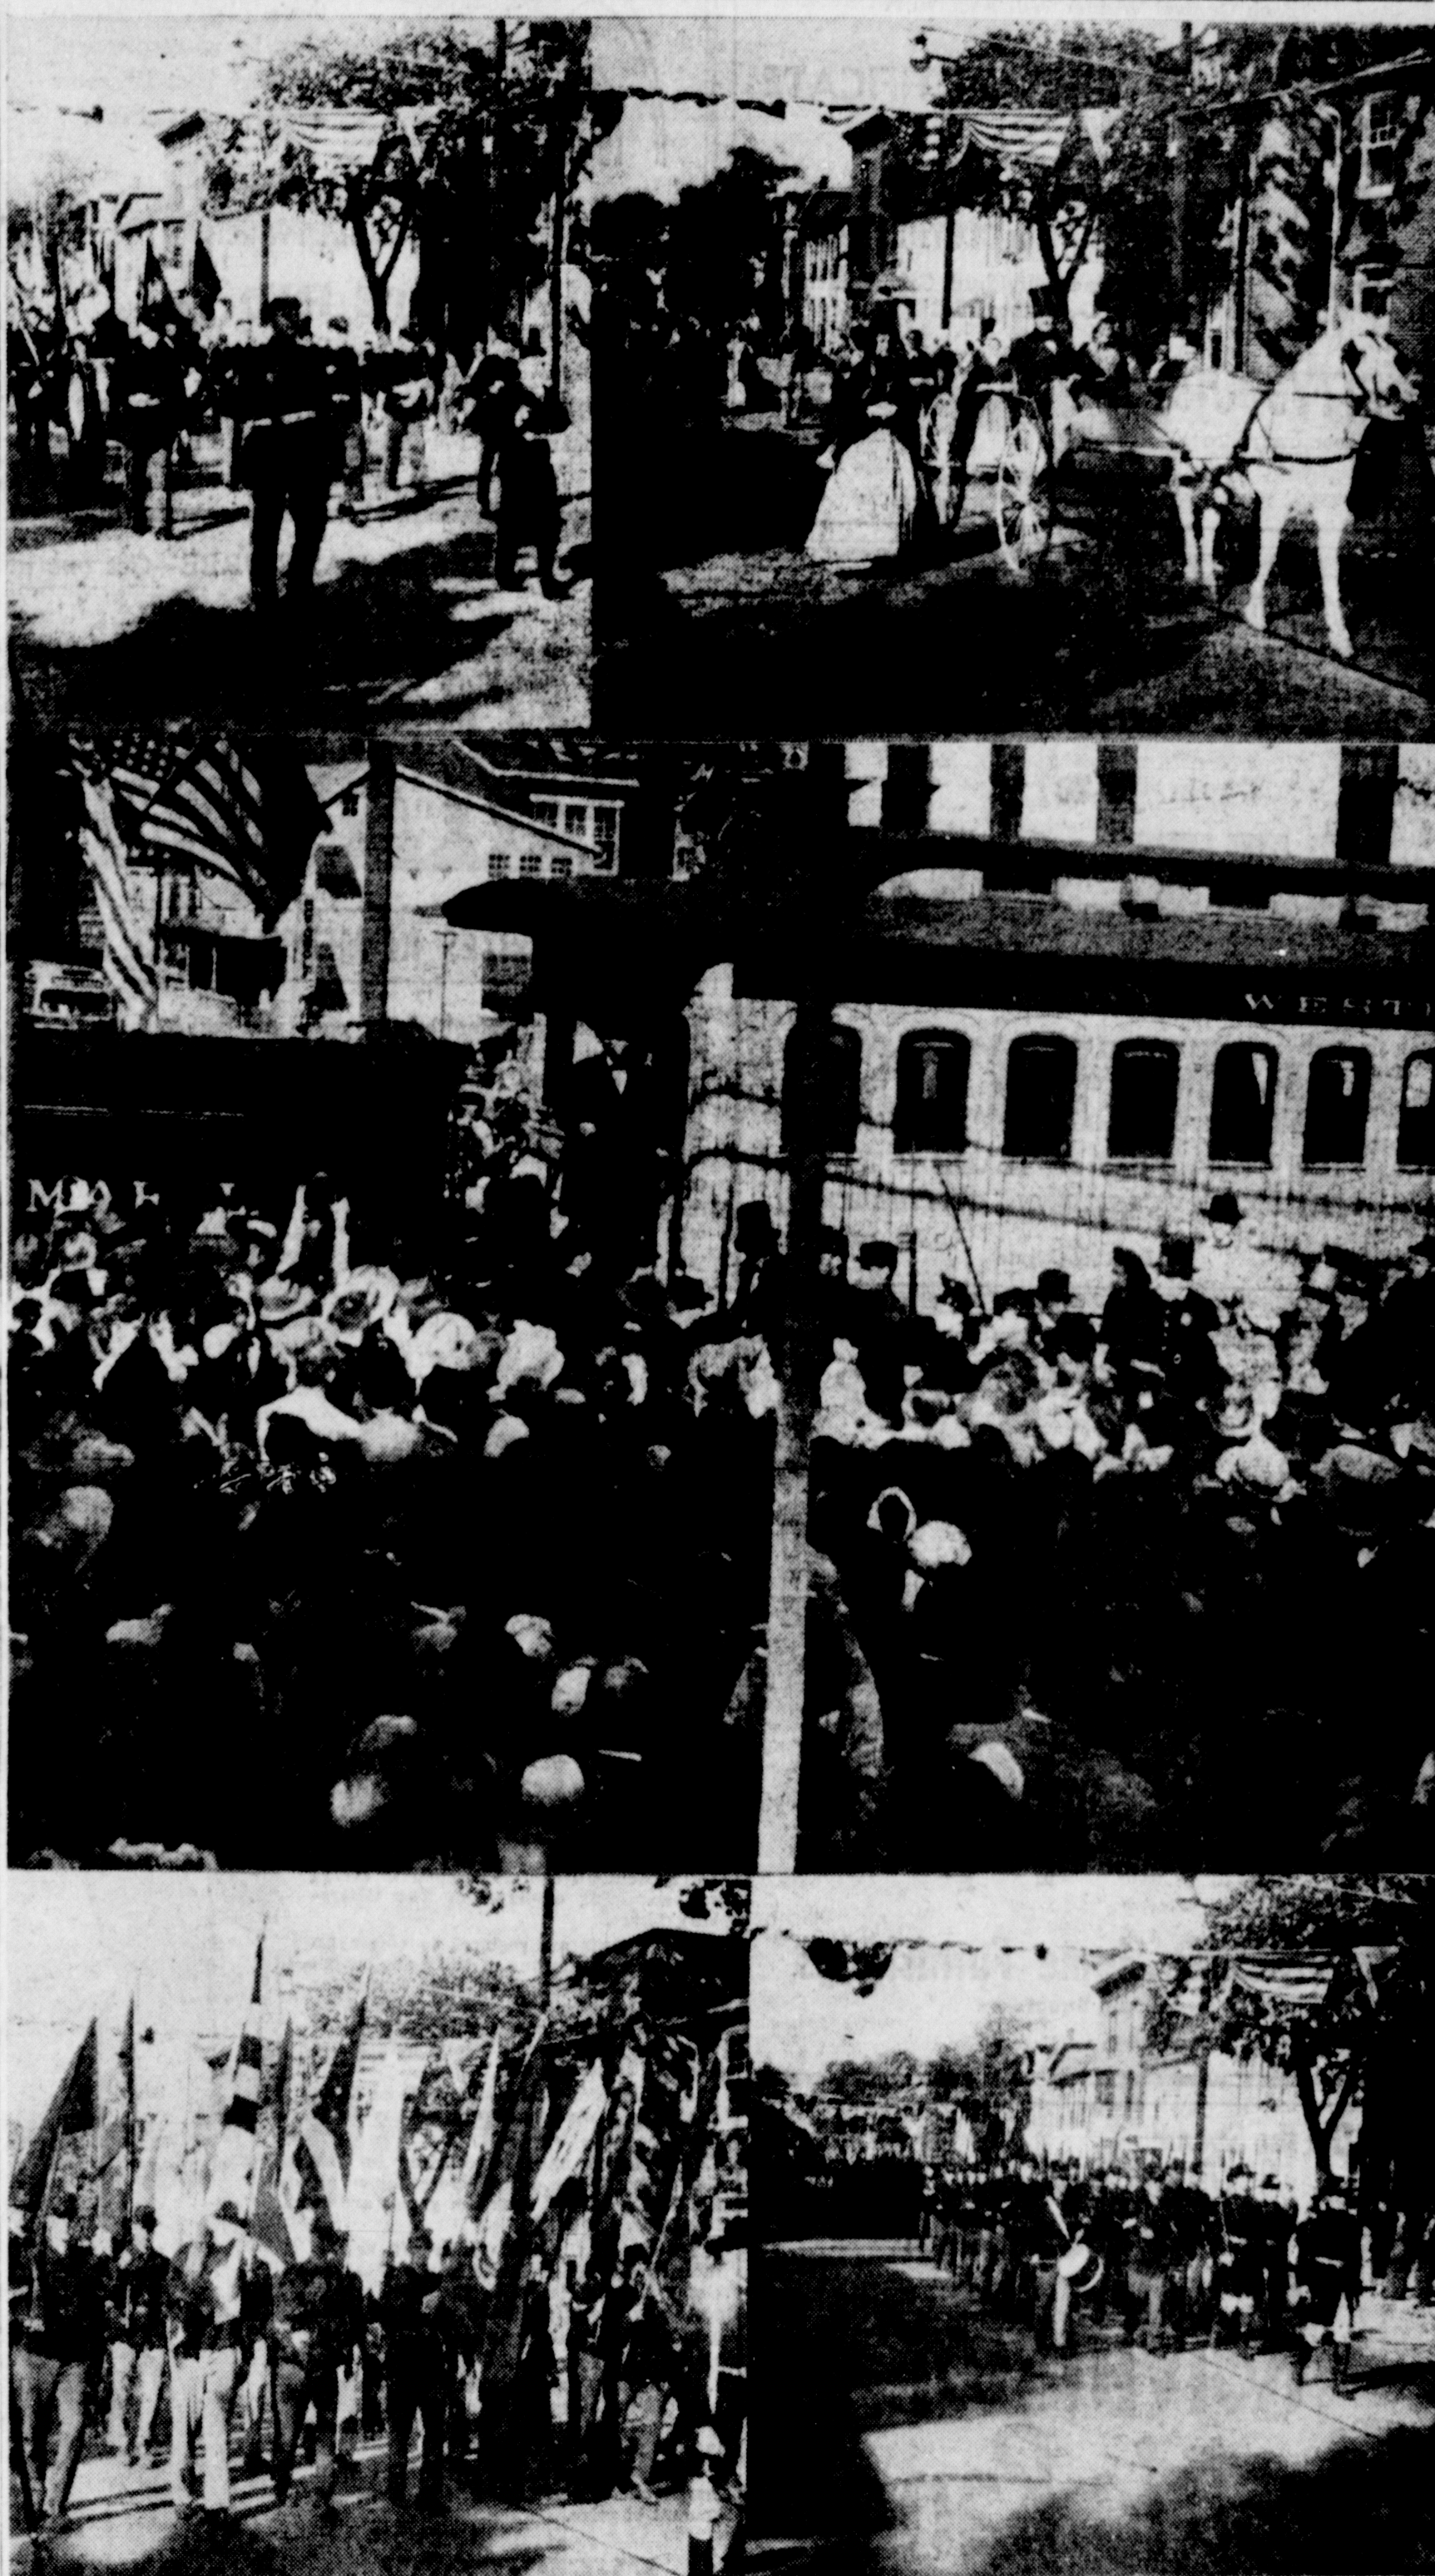

Action elsewhere along the 155-mile battlefield was light.

Rev. Lester J. Karschner showed two films on "How The Teacher Prepares" and "How People Learn." This was part of the adult conference. Following that, plans were made for the year.

Rev. Kammerer Speaks
The evening session began at 7:30 o'clock with A. M. Lavanture, president of the council, presiding. A song service was led by Prof. Yost and devotions were in charge of Rev. Mr. Rohrbaugh.

Special music was presented by a girls' trio from the Biglerville High School including Misses Barbara Madison, Martha Fisel and Pauline Slaybaugh, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Charles Yost. Their selections included "Bless This House" by Brame and "When Children Pray" by Senner.

A business session followed and the offering was received. Prof. Yost sang a solo entitled "The Voice in the Wilderness" by Scott. He was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Yost.

The address of the evening was presented by the Rev. David S. Kammerer, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Littlestown. Then followed Rev. Mr. Rohrbaugh's challenge on the rally theme.

TRUMAN ATTACK ON EISENHOWER STIRS RELIGIOUS AND RACE ISSUE

NEW YORK (AP)—President Truman's criticism of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower on immigration policies was whipping up a swelling controversy today over racial and religious issues.

Some Republican party leaders, a leading Jewish rabbi and fanatical Bernard Baruch lined up on Eisenhower's side while a Democratic congressman and at least one other Jewish leader spoke out for Truman.

The controversy sprang up after a Truman statement Friday that Eisenhower "is willing to accept the very practices that identify the so-called 'master race'."

Rabbi Shooked
Eisenhower, the Republican Presidential nominee, has not yet replied to Truman's statement. However, the general's headquarters here believes he will pick it up on a New England campaign trip he is starting today.

Rabbi Abner Hillel Silver of Cleveland visited Eisenhower here Saturday and then told newsmen he was shocked by Truman's statement.

Yesterday, Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.), a Zionist leader, and Irving Abramson, Executive Committee member of the American Jewish Congress, both criticized Silver and praised Truman.

Here are some excerpts from the various statements:

"Not Permissible"
Silver—"I expressed my feelings of shock (to Eisenhower) that an irresponsible statement of that character could be made. . . . The attempt, by implication, to identify a man like Gen. Eisenhower—whose humanity and broad tolerance are known all over the world—with anti-Semitism and anti-Catholicism is just not permissible even in the heat of a campaign."

Celler (in a statement issued in New York)—Silver's action is in bad taste and an affront to Zionists like myself. It all proves that when a rabbi steps off his pulpit and turns politician, he becomes a bad rabbi and a worse politician. . . . As a Zionist, he (Silver) should be on his hands and knees in gratitude to Truman.

One Defends Truman
Baruch (in answer to newsmen's questions in New York after Eisenhower's headquarters released a letter of high praise from Baruch to Eisenhower)—I certainly don't agree (with Truman's statement) but I will not attack him (Truman) unless he attacks me.
Abramson (in a telegram, released in Paterson, N. J., sent to Silver)—Your role as a promoter of the Republican party within known for many years. . . . Political partisanship seems to require you to stoop to public condemnation of the President. . . . who has demonstrated more courage than any other person in carrying the fight for civil liberties to places where those whom you support are too meek to face that fight.

BIG SHIPMENT OF OPIUM FOUND

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—U. S. Customs agents swarmed aboard the British oil tanker Silverdale when she docked here yesterday and confiscated 111 pounds of opium—valued at more than one million dollars on the narcotics black market.

Michael J. Bradley, collector of the Port of Philadelphia, who led the raid, said two Chinese crewmen were arrested and charged with attempting to smuggle and possession of narcotics. They are Ah Tay, a seaman, and Choy Peng, a fireman. Two other crew members, also Chinese, are being held for questioning, Bradley said.

The port collector said Capt. D. B. Edgar found 50 pounds of opium during the last leg of the voyage and placed it in his safe. Bradley's men were alerted by a radio message from the Silverdale on Saturday and were stationed on the pier when the ship docked.

Bradley declined to comment on reports that some of the crew were "high on opium" and had attempted a mutiny.

The Silverdale was inbound from the Persian Gulf with a load of oil. The crew was recruited earlier in the voyage at Singapore.

Refuse To Reopen Armistice Talks

TOKYO (AP)—Gen. Mark Clark today bluntly refused to reopen Korean armistice talks on Communist terms.

In a strongly worded message he told the top Red commanders in Korea the U. N. Command will never agree to negotiate further on any proposal requiring forced repatriation of war prisoners.

The Communists Thursday submitted a plan for renewing the truce talks at Panmunjon. Clark told them today it was the "same old package" and contained "nothing new or constructive."

Tin has been mined in Southwestern Britain since before recorded history.

TAYLOR SURE ABOUT PENN.

HARRISBURG (AP)—M. Harvey Taylor, state Republican chairman, is confident that "last ditch" Democratic efforts won't win Pennsylvania away from the Republican column on Nov. 4.

In a statement issued from GOP headquarters this week end Taylor predicted, "Pennsylvania will be in Ike Eisenhower's column on Nov. 4, in spite of a last ditch New Deal-Fair Deal blitz in the last weeks of the campaign."

He said he thought Keystone State voters are "too close to Washington to be fooled by honeyed words."

"There will be an avalanche of Fair Deal speeches, rumors and whispers from now until election day in an all-out attempt to scare Pennsylvania voters into keeping the Democrats in power for the next four years."

Taylor added that "the whisper-ers will be busy too but Pennsylvanians will resent 'gutter gossip' about a great leader."

And the GOP state vice chairman, Mrs. Sue Leffler, believes "women and young people of Pennsylvania have set up a terrific chain reaction for Ike—a reaction which will make itself felt Nov. 4th."

HISS CASE IS GROWING ISSUE IN CAMPAIGN

By JACK BELL

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—The Alger Hiss case became a major campaign issue today after supporters of Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson said Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower once was linked with the convicted former State Department employee.

Eight Stevenson supporters answered attacks on the Democratic nominee with a statement yesterday that Eisenhower, the Republican presidential candidate, had given "a far greater and more personal endorsement" of Hiss than Stevenson ever had.

And in New York City, an Eisenhower spokesman said Gov. Stevenson's friends "protest too much."

On Carnegie Board

The Stevenson supporters noted that Eisenhower had become a member of the Board of Trustees of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace in 1948 while Hiss was president of the organization.

They added that in December, the board, with Eisenhower a member, had voted to give Hiss three months leave of absence with full pay to defend himself against charges. Eisenhower never publicly expressed disapproval of that action, they added.

Hiss was convicted of lying to a jury in denying that he ever passed State Department secrets to a Communist courier. Stevenson made a deposition in Hiss' first trial saying that so far as he had heard Hiss' reputation was good.

Becoming Big Issue

Sen. Richard M. Nixon of California, the Republican vice presidential nominee, has attacked what he called Stevenson's "association" with Hiss. Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin also has made an is-son on his way east by train.

Stevenson asked Eisenhower yesterday to join him in a move to get businesses to give their employees time off for voting on election day.

REPAIR STANDARD

The Lincoln re-enactment has led to renovation of one of "Great White way" light standards on Lincoln Square. Decorators put a ladder on the standard Friday preparatory to placing bunting, and the standard started to lean dangerously. Metropolitan Edison Company officials immediately renovated the standard by replacing rusted bolts at its base.

The Democratic nominee will take time out tonight, in a speech at a campaign rally in the National Guard Armory here, to tend to his home state's fences. He will whistle stop through Illinois tomorrow.

Stevenson asked Eisenhower yesterday to join him in a move to get businesses to give their employees time off for voting on election day.

He noted there were reports of high registration from all parts of the country, but said the effects "may be largely frustrated if those who register do not have an opportunity to vote on election day."

MISSING TRIO IS SAFE; RECALL 200-MAN POSSE

CHESTER, Pa. (AP)—A 200-man posse was dismissed early Saturday morning after a three-day search for a missing girl who had been missing since Friday night turned up safely northwest of here. Sheriff's officers having massed a posse of a grocer and three children a week ago.

Grim-faced, armed lumbermen had massed swiftly to scour the rugged country where only a week ago the beaten bodies of grocer Guard Young and three small children were found stuffed into an auto trunk.

However, shortly before 5 a. m., the Sheriff's office got a report from the Collins Pine Co., employer of both men, that they were found. The location was given as east of Chiles Meadows, 33 miles northwest of Chester.

Deputies said the three were safe. There was no immediate explanation for their failure to return from a movie in nearby Westwood, last night.

Fearful Tragedy
Members of this community, shocked by last week's quadruple slaying, hurriedly assembled at the office of the Justice of the Peace with word that Carol Jean Hawkins, 2, her millworker father, Leonard Hawkins, about 36, and Don McLaughlin, 19, his brother-in-law, were missing. All were of Chester.

Armed possumen, wearing heavy jackets and denim pants, tramped and drove into the dark, rain-swept hills. Some brought dogs to aid in the search. Roadblocks were set up.

Early Saturday Hawkins' wife phoned the sheriff's office in Chester and reported the three had failed to return from the movie. Westwood is about 14 miles from Chester.

With the two men and the child still missing, the sheriff's office told newsmen a search was underway and he was organizing a posse at the county seat, Quincey.

The officials said the missing three went to Westwood in Hawkins' sedan. The moviehouse in Westwood closed before midnight.

PENNSY VOTERS WILL DECIDE ON AMENDMENT

HARRISBURG (AP)—Pennsylvania voters will decide at the Nov. 4 election whether to pave the way for possible liquidation of 215 million dollars in authority bonds.

Dr. Edward B. Logan, budget secretary to Gov. John S. Fine, said the proposed amendment to the state constitution is designed to take advantage of a lower interest rate available to the Commonwealth and not the authorities.

"The intent of this measure is to save interest charges since 'full faith and credit' Commonwealth bonds usually have a lower interest rate at any given time than authority bonds," Logan said.

The budget secretary estimated the savings could amount to many million dollars.

The proposal is in the form of a constitutional amendment up for final voter approval after passing the 1949 and 1951 legislatures. If it passes on Nov. 4, an enabling law would be necessary for the plan to take effect.

The amendment and later legislative action would permit the Commonwealth to pay off 175 million dollars in General State Authority bonds and 40 millions in State Highway and Bridge Authority bonds.

State fiscal officers would await the right time in the bond market to sell the new Commonwealth bonds.

Logan emphasized that passage of the proposed amendment does not mean the two authorities would be abandoned.

"The amendment doesn't authorize retiring all the authorities' bonds. Another 60 million authorized for the GSA and 40 million more for the Highway and Bridge Authority are unaffected by the amendment."

Both the GSA and the Highway and Bridge Authority were created by the 1949 legislature as borrow-and-build agencies to circumvent the state constitution's debt limit of one million dollars.

followed. Then came the Fife and Drum Corps representing the 18 Federal states, after that the Knights Templar in black suits with white plumes waving on their black hats and the K. of C. with their chests bright with the pale green velvet and gold Balderics.

Colorful Parade
Additional personages and groups in the parade were members of the Baltimore Glee Club... the young ladies of the Gettysburg Seminary... a Conestoga wagon drawn by two giant white horses... a fire department hose wagon pulled by two young boys... countless persons who assembled from nearby towns to participate in the great event of 1863... country women clad in bonnet and shawl... children and parents piled in a straw-filled farm wagon drawn by a huge "plough horse"... and numerous detachments of military personnel on horseback representing the Presidential guard, color sergeants, Regular Infantry Troops, and Cavalry, U. S. Army of the Potomac.

Slowly we followed the ribbon-like procession to the cemetery about half a mile from Lincoln Square. A gay carpet of scarlet and gold leaves lay over the small white headstones like bright banners. The mellowness of autumn filled the grove with a sense of peace... of restfulness... and a knowledge of great things accomplished. Sunlight filtered like golden mist through the great branches of the spreading oaks and through the leaves of the giant ash trees. Dark cedars and the plumed cypress held long memories of other days.

Display 1863 Fashions
The men and ladies were taking their places in front of the platform skirted with red, white and blue bunting. Crisp taffeta rustled in the late afternoon breeze. Horses were neighing... children were climbing trees for a better view. Some of the women spotted were Mrs. Joseph Rosensteel in navy faille, with her daughter, Emily, in a blue and brown linen print... Miss Jane Stallsmith in garnet wool... Mrs.

Lawrence H. Eckert Jr. in rose moire... Mrs. Walter C. Langsam in black taffeta... Mrs. Robert Kenworthy in blue faille... Mrs. Robert Derck in black moire... Miss Julia Peters and Mrs. G. Henry Roth both in grey... Miss Virginia Myers in black... Mrs. William Fraley in red taffeta... Mrs. Edwin Killalea in maroon and gold stripes... and there were countless others, all in the nostalgic fashion of 1863.

There was a hush over the crowd, then a great voice took over, a deep voice... a quavering voice... a strong voice... a haunting voice. We could hear the words "we are met on a great battlefield" and the echoes filled the park, winging upward like a voice in the vaulted dome of a cathedral. We were aware of the field of battle. We were standing on it. There was the clash of old swords in our ears and the din of ancient cannonade sounded again through the hills. Again we could see Pickett come marching across the open fields with his 15 thousand men in grey to be met by the deadly "grape and canister" shooting from Union guns.

... that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

A Deep, Strong, Haunting Voice, Abraham Lincoln's, Returns To Historic Gettysburg

Weaver as Burgess and Mrs. Martin and scores of other townsfolk of '63.

From the train poured the notables, Cameras flashed in the sunlight as they alighted from the special train. Movie cameras were grinding away and still camera fans practically stood on their heads to get a "quick shot."

There was a moment's pause before the tall, black-clad figure of Mr. Lincoln appeared at the top step of the railway coach. Impermeated by the actor, Ray Middleton, Abraham Lincoln had come alive again. There was the melancholy mien... the black beard... the deep voice with a slight quaver... the high silk hat... We looked and looked and we became spectators in another day... another century. It was again November 19, 1863. After this, the pageant was not "make-believe" any more, it had become a real thing to us.

Governor Greets President
After the spirited ovation, President Lincoln and his entourage moved to the Wills House on the diamond (Lincoln Square as it is known today). Here Mr. Lincoln was welcomed by John S. Rice as the Governor of Pennsylvania in 1863, Andrew G. Curtin.

Mr. Lincoln spoke a few words to the crowd gathered in the square and later applied the finishing touches to his speech of dedication which he would deliver at the ceremonies to be held at the cemetery on the morrow. The President's face looked serious. He was worried about his son, Tad, who was ill. Later in the evening an announcement was made that Tad was better and the people rejoiced with Mr. Lincoln.

The next morning (about 20 minutes before our arrival at the Wills House), we gathered in the square again to watch the parade to the cemetery. Mr. Lincoln mounted a spirited chestnut-colored horse.

Young soldiers in black and red uniforms whom Lincoln named "drafts" lined up to precede their President up Baltimore St. The mounted entourage and distinguished guests

Junior Choir Sings
The Junior Choir of Redeemer's Reformed Church participated in the Sunday morning worship service for the first time this fall on Sunday. The Junior Choir, under the direction of the pastor, the Rev. Frank E. Reynolds, sang "O, Saviour Sweet," J. S. Bach, as a special anthem and also led the congregational singing. Mrs. Elwood H. Leister, church organist, presided at the console for the singing. The Rev. Mr. Reynolds delivered a sermon on the subject "Faith's Significance" based on the text Matthew 9:2—"When Jesus saw their faith he said to the paralytic, 'Take heart, my son; your sins are forgiven.'"

The Epistle lesson was taken from Ephesians 4:22-28 and the Gospel lesson from Matthew 9:1-8. The altar flowers on Sunday were given in memory of John R. Snyder for the family. The bulletins were given in memory of Hershey G. Stambaugh by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Stambaugh. The pastor announced that the church organ is being removed on Wednesday and Thursday to be taken to York to be rebuilt by the Furst Organ Company. It is expected to have the rebuilt organ back in the church early in December and a rededication service will follow.

The calendar of events at Redeemer's Church has been announced as follows: Tonight, 7:30 o'clock, Hustlers' Class Halloween party; tonight, 7:30 o'clock, Teachers' Training School at Gettysburg; Tuesday, 3:45 p. m., confirmation instruction; Wednesday, 3:45 p. m., Junior Choir rehearsal; Thursday, 7:30 p. m., Senior Choir rehearsal; Friday evening, banquet served by the Ladies Aid Society in the social hall; Sunday, 2 p. m., Teachers' conference at St. Stephen's Church, York; Wednesday, Oct. 29, banquet served by the Ladies Aid Society; Sunday, Nov. 2, Synod-wide pulpit exchange, when the Rev. Richard Shaffer of Hallam will be the guest speaker.

CALL U. S. REDS SOVIET PUPPET
WASHINGTON (AP)—A Government panel today called the American Communist party "a puppet of the Soviet Union" and recommended that it be required to register with the U. S. Government and bare its membership roster and its finances.

The recommendation came in a report by a two-member panel of the Subversive Activities Control Board, which had listened to more than 14 months of testimony.

"Natured by the Soviet Union," the panel report said, the party "strives incessantly to make the United States a Soviet America."

The panel recommended that the party be required to register with the attorney general as Moscow-dominated, list its officers and members, and give a financial accounting.

This marked the first step in a "you must register" drive directed against the American Communist party.

Britain Is Flying Troops To Kenya
LONDON (AP)—Britain is flying a battalion of White troops to Kenya tonight to cope with Mau Mau terrorists out to drive the British from the East African colony.

The Colonial office said the cruiser Kenya would be sent to Mombasa, 400 miles from Nairobi, within the next few days to support troops in the Kenya capital.

It will be the first time in years that a British battalion has served in East Africa. The colony normally is garrisoned by African soldiers serving under White officers.

During the past few weeks Mau Mau terrorists have committed dozens of murders, arson, cattle killing and other crimes.

MISSECKENRODE, L. H. STUDY WED

Miss Kathryn Louise Eckenrode, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Eckenrode, Littlestown, R. 2, and LeRoy Howard Study, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Study, 63 Crouse Park, Littlestown, were united in marriage on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock in St. Aloysius Catholic Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. Edward J. Shanahan, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Joseph Clabaugh, Bon-neauville, as matron of honor, and Shirley Crouse, a friend, and Loretta Study, sister of the groom, as bridesmaids. The bridegroom had as his best man William Eckenrode, brother of the bride. The ushers were Paul Scheivert, uncle of the groom, and Richard Eckenrode, brother of the bride. James Roser, South Queen St., Littlestown, was ringbearer and Rose Marie Eckenrode, West King St., was flower girl. Michael Collins and Gordon Eckenrode were the acolytes.

Given By Father
The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a white net gown over satin, fashioned with a tight bodice, a high neckline and long sleeves ending in a point over the hand. The gown featured a full skirt with a long train, edged in lace. Her finger tip length veil of net was made with a cap effect. She carried a bouquet of white gladioli, from which fell a shower of streamers and rosebuds and also a white sterling silver rosary. Her jewelry was a string of pearls.

The matron of honor wore an aqua gown, featuring a lace bodice, with a skirt of net over satin and a lace bolero. She wore a matching Juliet cap and half mitts, and carried a bouquet of white gladioli and pink carnations. Miss Crouse wore a yellow net gown over satin with a bolero, and a wreath of yellow and white baby mums. She also carried a bouquet of yellow and white chrysanthemums. Miss Study wore an aqua satin gown trimmed with lace and a wreath of yellow baby mums. Her bouquet was yellow chrysanthemums. The flower girl wore yellow net over satin, with matching halo hat and wrist muffs. Her basket was filled with yellow and white baby mums. The ring bearer, in a white suit, carried the rings on a satin pillow.

Luncheon And Reception
Mrs. Daniel Dietrich, church organist, presented a 15-minute recital prior to the ceremony and played the wedding marches of Carl Rossini. The church altars were decorated with fall flowers.

Following the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents for the wedding party and the immediate families. A pink and white color scheme was used in the decorations of crepe paper and wedding bells and a three tier wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, and flanked by silver candlesticks were the centerpiece of the refreshment table.

A reception was held on Saturday night at Scheivert's Garage, near town, with approximately 200 guests in attendance. Blue, pink and white decorations were used, with an abundance of wedding bells. A four-tier wedding cake, in the shape of a bell, was topped with wedding bells and a bride and groom. The newlyweds received many gifts. Music was provided during the evening by a string quartet. Out-of-town guests were present from Boston, Baltimore, Westminster and Heidersburg. The couple went to housekeeping in-

TWO KILLED ON PIKE

CARLISLE, Pa. (AP)—Two persons were crushed to death in their car when it ran into a bridge abutment on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, about 11 miles west of Carlisle.

The victims were identified as Mr. and Mrs. Robert Puderbaugh, Philadelphia, who were traveling yesterday towards Harrisburg. State police believe their car was bumped by a truck and forced into the abutment. The truck did not stop.

STOCKS EDGE DOWN

NEW YORK (AP)—A downside tendency appeared today in a mixed stock market. Price changes all were exceedingly narrow either way, but the minus signs appeared to have a slight edge. Trading was rather slow. Even the orders coming into the market over the weekend were not sufficiently large to cause more than a momentary stir.

TRUMAN HONORS HOPE

WASHINGTON (AP)—Comedian Bob Hope visited the White House today and received from President Truman a citation, signed by nearly a million servicemen, expressing appreciation for Hope's entertainment of troops.

Hope quipped to reporters later that, politically, he was "like a California driver—right down the middle of the road."

guests to the pageant arrived on time, 1:15 p.m. It was the longest passenger train to arrive in Gettysburg in many years.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Skelly, of Elizabeth, N. J., were among the visitors. Dan is a native of Gettysburg and frequently returns "home" to visit his oldtime friends. Three devastating plane crashes in Elizabeth hoisted that city into the headlines during recent months.

W. Arthur Grotz, president of the Western Maryland Railway Company, had to walk to the National Cemetery despite the fact that his company had chartered more than a dozen buses to transport guests and others to and from the closing scene of the pageant. Congested traffic on North Washington St. caused, it was said, by a trucker, snarled bus traffic. Mr. Grotz, accompanied by C. A. Wills, president of the Gettysburg National Bank, more, spent the weekend with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Joy, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Adams, and Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Warthen.

Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Cadie attended the Navy-University of Maryland football game on Saturday.

An orientation dinner was given in Taneytown, Md., for the new members of the Mt. St. Mary's College Glee Club. The Rev. David W. Shaum is conductor of the club and the Rev. Peter A. Coad serves as moderator. Plans have been made for several concerts before Christmas. Plans are being made for the "Home-coming Weekend" scheduled for November 8. A dance is planned for the visiting alumni. The Rev. Hugh J. Phillips, secretary of the Alumnae Association, is in charge of the arrangements.

and Joseph E. Codori, got out and walked. Other passengers did the same thing.

The bus service was superb. The fleet of buses from Baltimore ran shuttle service to the cemetery much to the delight of the hundreds of guests.

The crowd started gathering early in the cemetery and sat silently listening to the narration of the pageant at the railroad station and Willis House by Ben Grauer of NBC. Leaves fluttered across the green lawn, a bright sun added warmth to the October air and a lone fleecy cloud flitted across the blue sky. It was a comfortable and picturesque setting. The temperature was 69 degrees.

The Lincoln special arrived at 1:50 p.m. and the big pageant was underway. The thousands of spectators were quiet, tense, impressed and inspired. They realized that a great incident in history was about to be re-enacted. What they witnessed in the next two hours will never be forgotten.

The Lincoln re-enactment attracted the largest number of newspaper reporters and photographers here since General Eisenhower visited his farm. The New York Times sent Meyer Berger, one of the top reporters and essayists in the country and author of the history of The New York Times, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Harrisburg and Lancaster reporters were also present.

Joseph L. Rosensteel, who did some announcing and acted the part of Edward Everett, is treasuring two news clippings. One, from a Philadelphia paper, referred to him as "Actor Joe Rosensteel" and a Lancaster paper gave him a Spanish name—"Jose Rosensteel."

The script for the pageant received its finishing touches at about 10 o'clock Saturday morning. Joseph Rosensteel, who served as announcer, was called to the Hotel Gettysburg by Mrs. Adele Gutman Nathan. There Ben Grauer, NBC announcer, and Marc Connelly, author of the narration, were working out the final details of the script. Connelly, Rosensteel learned, paces the floor when he gets up to the point of artistic creation; while Grauer becomes a tower of patience when things start to go wrong.

Fred Pfeffer, Baltimore St., who has been making up amateur actors for years here, almost learned a few additional tricks in the art of make-up Saturday. While Pfeffer was applying sideburns, beards, etc., he kept an eye on the professional make-up artist from Baltimore who was working beside him. Pfeffer lamented: "He wasn't giving away any tricks, however. Every time I got a chance to watch what he was doing, he sent me on an errand, so I didn't have time to see."

After death the body cools at an average rate of about 1.5 degrees an hour, says the American Medical Association.
